We are supporting our client Deepscreen:

Deepscreen is the IT company established in Switzerland. The company has many years of experience in making various Online solutions for our clients. High quality of solutions, well-developed technical solutions, professional customer service and strong team spirit among our employees are crucial parts of our success. Since we are establishing a team which will support out client who develops online marketing solutions and applications, we are looking for:

Front-end Developer

Developers will work on the online marketing solutions and applications for customers - mainly in Switzerland, Austria and Germany. As some of the customers are doing business worldwide, the solutions are also used in Asia and the US. Framework the company uses is running in a server center which fulfills the compliant requirements of the national Swiss banks authorities.

The focus in work will be on our client's ContentUpdate solution – online marketing framework based on Microsoft .NET. Customers use only one technology to manage different applications in their online marketing activities. With ContentUpdate customers manage their intranet, extranet, website, online-shop and e-mail-marketing in one interface. We are currently developing the new version, 4.0 of this framework.

Other focus will also be on development of Individual Application. Extensions and interfaces to other software solutions are part of some customer projects, especially if they are using our online marketing framework as an important part of their online activities. But we develop also independent applications and web platforms.
